

Mr. Handyman Keeps Your Power Bills Low In Summer

To watch the video, click here: <http://cbs2.com/tv/mr.handyman.summer.2.1803326.html>

LOS ANGELES (CBS) — July 14, 2010

Now that June Gloom is behind us, a lot of Angelenos will be cranking up the AC (air conditioner if you're not a fan) to try to keep cool.

And you know keeping cool is the easy part. It's seeing your power bill the following month that can make you overheat.

David Silverman, who is owner of Mr. Handyman in West Los Angeles, was a KCAL 9 News at Noon in-studio guest Wednesday, July 14, 2010.

He offered great and practical advice on keeping cool and keeping those power bills lower this summer.

He suggested everything from fans, a programmable thermometer, weather stripping and blinds -- all ways to reduce the need to crank up the AC so high.

For more tips on keeping your home energy efficient, visit Mr. Handyman's website.